INTENT AND SCOPE

This report presents the findings of damage inspections that were conducted as a result of the Butte Incident (CA-AEU-024918) that began on September 9th, 2015 in Amador County, near Jackson, CA. Information contained in this report is the product of inspections of habitable structures and out buildings damaged or destroyed as result of the fire. Damaged infrastructure, mobile property, and miscellaneous parcel improvements were not inspected.

Methodology

For the purposes of this report, a structure is considered to be residence when it is permanent and habitable. Habitable features include, but are not limited to; a heat source (stove, fireplace, etc.), beds, sinks, bathrooms, water heaters, windows. In order to be considered a permanent structure a variety of criteria needed to be met. Generally, if the structure had a foundation comprised of concrete and/or cinder blocks, and if the structure was attached to that foundation it was considered permanent. With regard to damaged structures, any significant disfiguration or cosmetic damage to a structure was recorded as damaged. All structures meeting criteria above are included in the report regardless of whether they were approved, permitted, conforming, recorded or the current use-status. Some report data is referenced with other data sources which may have unknown errors or omissions.

The general size threshold to become a taxable structure for the county tax assessor is 120 square feet. For the purposes of this report, an outbuilding structure needed to be approximately 120 square feet minimum and a permanent structure. Damage numbers are subject to change in the coming weeks as owners return to their property and share more detailed information of their properties.

The Damage Inspection (DINS) Team used a mobile collection device with a reproduced form from the Post Fire Inspection Worksheet to capture the data in an organized manner. Damage caused by fire suppression activities are not included in this report and would be cataloged by the compensation and claims unit.

BACKGROUND

The Butte Fire area involved USGS Quadrants of the Mokelumne Hill, Rail Road Flat, Pine Grove, West Point, San Andreas, Calaveritas, Murphys, and Fort Mountain maps. The fire burned through multiple drainages, mainly in Calaveras County, including the Mokelumne River, Jesus Maria Creek, Calaveras River, Murray Creek and Calaveritas Creek. The drainages, in general, have an east to west direction as they drain from the foothills to the Central Valley. The slopes in the fire area range from 75% or more in the drainages to flat terrain in the valleys. Much of the terrain is divided by the multiple drainages and their many tributaries. The elevation ranges from approximately 600 feet in the Mokelumne River to almost 3,000 feet at the peaks to the east. The ownership of the land affected by the fire includes private State Responsibility Area (SRA) and Bureau of Land Management (BLM). All of the fire area was within the State Direct Protection Area (DPA).

Amador and Calaveras counties are located in the Mother Lode region of California, along Highway 49 in the foothills and mountains of the Sierra Nevada Mountain Range. The region experienced rapid population growth in the mid-1800’s following the discovery of gold at Sutter’s Mill. Ranching and logging coincided and extended beyond the gold rush era. The area experienced more recent population growth in the 1970s through the 1990s (Calaveras County General Plan, 2012). Much of the development associated with this growth occurred in and around rural communities located in the wildland-urban interface. According to 2014 US Census data, the combined population of the two counties is 81,366.

SYNOPSIS

The Butte Fire grew to 70,868 acres before being 100% contained. The fire eventually destroyed or damaged 965 Structures.

A Federal Fire Management Assistance Grant (FM-5111) was requested and approved on September 10, 2015. On September 11, 2015 a State of Emergency for Amador and Calaveras Counties was declared by Governor Brown.

On September 22, 2015 Governor Brown requested that the area burned in the Butte Fire be declared a Federal Major Disaster. On Thursday, September 23, 2015, President Obama, declared the Butte Fire a Federal Major Disaster (DR-4240; Amendments 1, 2, 3, 4) to include the Butte Fire and Calaveras County.

WEATHER

Much of California has experienced four consecutive years of below average precipitation. This resulted in central California being classified in exceptional drought by the U.S. Drought Monitor for at least the last calendar year prior to the start of the Butte Fire. Depending on elevation, temperatures and rainfall vary widely within the Butte Fire burn area. Lower elevations typically experience highs in the 90s to 100s during summer and the 50s and 60s during winter. Higher elevations are generally in the 70s and 80s during summer and the 30s and 40s during winter. Rainfall increases with elevation, ranging from near 20 inches at lower elevations to over 50 inches near the Sierra crest, most of which falls as snow.

At the time the Butte Fire started, September 9, 2015, temperatures in the area were running close to 20 degrees above normal with relative humidity values dropping into the single digits at times. The day the fire started the high temperature observed at the closest 2 RAWS sites, Mount Zion (MTZC1) and Banner Road (ESPC1) were 99F and 102F respectively with relative humidity of 10% and 9%. A trough over the Central Valley maintained winds out of the northwest at 7 to 12 mph with gusts as high as 24 mph. Conditions reported on September 10th and 11th were similar to those the day the fire started.

On Saturday and Sunday, September 12th and 13th, the trough dissipated with weak low pressure developing off the California coast. The weakened gradient allowed winds to become more terrain driven while the location of the surface low helped slowly spread moisture over the valley. Lighter winds and increasing moisture aloft lead to increased cloud cover and smoke over the area, which kept high temperatures in the middle to upper 80s during the weekend.

Development of a mid-level trough just off the California coast maintained deep southwest flow Monday and Tuesday, September 14th and 15th. The presence of the trough meant occasional shortwaves passed over or just north of the fire area. These shortwaves generated isolated light sprinkles on Monday and Tuesday with showers developing Monday night. Although no measurable rainfall was reported on Monday and Tuesday, the Banner Road RAWS reported 0.03" of rain Monday night. Mount Zion did not record any measurable rainfall. In addition to sprinkles and showers strong gusty winds developed Monday and continued through Monday night and on Tuesday. Although infrequent, gusts of 25 to 30 mph were reported at times. Temperatures Monday and Monday night remained above normal but thick cloud cover and cooler air associated with the approaching trough held temperatures Tuesday 10 to 20 degrees below normal. Skies cleared out Tuesday night and dropped lows into the 40s.

The mid-level trough moved onshore Wednesday into Thursday, September 16th and 17th, accompanied by another round of sprinkles Wednesday night. As was the case Tuesday, extensive cloud cover developed by mid-morning Wednesday which held high temperatures 10 to 20 degrees below normal. A cold front moved across the fire late Wednesday night and clearing skies dropped lows Thursday morning into the upper 40s to lower 50s.

High pressure off the California coast built east, drying out the region for the end of the week and the weekend. Northwest flow with gusts of 15 to 20 mph Thursday kept high temperatures slightly below normal. Temperatures moderated slightly Thursday night with lows ranging from upper 40s to middle 50s.

FUELS AND FIRE BEHAVIOR

The fuels within the Butte fire perimeter varied as the elevation increased to the east. On the west portion and lower elevations the fuels were annual grass and oak woodlands. As the elevation increases to the east, fuels transition to annual grass and brush with interspersed Oak and Gray Pine. Many of the drainages were dominated by brush fields of chaparral, manzanita and oak trees. In the sections of brush, it was a continuous canopy with leaf litter and very little grass. On the eastern portion of the fire the fuels began to transition into a timber model with mature pine trees and a grass and litter understory. The majority of the burned area was brush or grass and oak woodland. The fuel model used for this fire was SH7(147) Very High Load, Dry Climate Shrub. This model still under-predicted the flame lengths being produced in the fire, but was more accurate for rate of spread on average for the fire. The reason the models are unable to be completely accurate is due to the stressed nature of the fuels from the prolonged drought, the unseasonable temperatures and low humidity during the fire. This weather did not allow for fuels to recover in the evenings, creating active fire through the night.

Live fuel moistures were taken at three sites surrounding the fire. The Tonzi Road site, in Amador County, is northeast of the incident and was sampled on 7/16/15 with new growth at 68% and old growth at 63%. The Valley Springs site, to the west of the incident, was sampled on 8/3/15 with new growth at 60% and old growth at 47%. These two sites sampled Chamise. The last site was the Sonora site, south of the incident, sampled on 7/16/15, and had Chamise new growth at 68% and old growth at 57%. The Whiteleaf Manzanita at the same location on the same date was new growth 68% and old growth 57%. These fuels were already below or slightly above critical levels. The Valley Springs and Sonora site were sampled one to two months prior, which means the fuels were lower at the time of the fire than what had been reported.

There is little fire history in the area, with the more recent fires being on the smaller scale and the large incidents mainly outside of the perimeter. This has produced older stands of brush and combined with several years of drought, has increased the dead to live fuel ratio. The fuels have been stressed from multiple years of drought. The general area is also starting to see the effect of bug kill combined with the drought in the timber. The oak trees have also begun to show the effect of the drought with many of them starting to brown out and lose their leaves. These stressed fuels had a major impact on how the fire spread and the speed it traveled. As discussed earlier, the weather was also a factor as it was unseasonable for the area.

The fire started in the Mokelumne River Canyon on the south facing slope. The fire originally was influenced by the slope and the southwest winds. When the southwest winds subsided a north wind surfaced creating spot fires on the north slope of the canyon. The spots were now in slope with wind alignment that caused rapid growth.

The second day of the fire the north wind proved to be a large factor in fire growth along with the fuel conditions. The fire had continued to grow through the night, and when the north wind surfaced in the late morning, it created extreme fire behavior. The fuels in the fire area, combined with the weather, created a perfect environment for spot fires. The oak trees and brush were completely consumed sending smoldering leaves down wind. The fire progressed six miles to the southeast consuming 25,333 acres in one operational period. The fire made independent crown runs downhill with a moderate wind, with only a light grass understory. The fire never fully became plume-dominated as the upper level winds were from the south and sheared the column, and the north winds were just strong enough to direct the fire travel.

The third day of the fire saw the same north winds develop late in the morning. The fire continued to the southeast, eventually splitting into two heads around the Mountain Ranch Community. The fire progressed another six miles and consumed 29,390 acres in this operational period.

Fire conditions both on the second and third days produced long range spotting, up to $\frac{3}{4}$ -1 mile from the trees and $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the brush. This created a suppression problem as crews could not safely get in front of the fire. Spot fires dramatically increased the rate of spread. There were many areas where there were sustained crown runs in the tall brush and the oaks and Grey Pines.

The fourth day of the fire, the winds began to weaken and the fire progression began to slow as the fuels and terrain became the main influence on the fire. The fire continued the next couple of days, spotting and making short runs. The fire slowed dramatically when the weather changed and the humidity recovered with some light rain over a two day period. After the moist weather, the fuels took two to three days to completely return to their cured state and increased the fire behavior slightly. When the moist weather moved in, it created unburned islands in the fire which later began to increase activity as it became hotter and drier. Several areas of the fire had the understory consumed leaving the brush over story. This stressed the vegetation more, causing the brush and trees to start dropping leaves and needles creating a new understory. This new understory created smoldering material in the islands which occasionally increased in activity and created small fires in the islands.

There was still fire growth when the weather changed, but it was not large scale growth as the days before. There were still spotting issues and winds continued coming from the opposite direction. The winds were affected by the terrain and created a spot against the general wind pattern. This growth was mitigated when the fire area received a small amount of wetting rain, just enough to slow the perimeter where suppression efforts could be successful.

INITIAL ATTACK

The Butte Fire was reported to the CAL FIRE-Amador-EI Dorado Unit Emergency Command Center on September 9th, 2015 at 1424 hours. Immediately a full wildland dispatch consisting of one Battalion Chief (BC), 9 engines, 1 bulldozer, 3 hand crews, 2 water tenders, 2 helicopters, 2 air tankers and 1 air attack were dispatched to the area of Butte Mountain Road near Charamuga Ranch Road.

Upon initial size up the fire was approximately four acres and generally burning up slope and up wind. Initial attack crews aggressively attacked the fire and by 1700 crews were making good progress towards successful containment. The fire started in the Mokelumne River Canyon north of the river on the south facing slope. The fire originally was influenced by the slope and the up canyon winds. When the up canyon winds subsided a north wind surfaced creating spot fires on the south side of the river. The spots were now in slope with wind alignment that caused rapid growth.

At approximately 1757 a spot fire was reported on the south side of the Mokelumne River in Calaveras County. The spot fire on the south side of the Mokelumne River became quickly established in thick north aspect vegetation cover. Additionally, the now predominately north wind was in alignment to push the fire upslope. This created the perfect condition for rapid fire growth. The initial attack Incident Commander (IC) reported that once the spot fire was reported on the south side of Mokelumne River, it reached the ridgetop in ten minutes.

Around this time the IC requested the Calaveras County Sheriff's Office to begin evacuations on Montgomery Drive. A large resource order was also placed and soon the request would be place for the regional incident management team, as well as a CAL FIRE Type 1 Incident Management Team (IMT). The fire burned actively throughout the night, jumping highway 26 and threatening the community of Mokelumne hill by the next morning. By this point the fire was transitioning into a major incident and CALFIRE IMT 1 assumed management of the fire at 11:00 AM September 10th, 2015.

DAMAGE INSPECTION TEAM NARRATIVE

On the evening on September 10th, CAL FIRE Incident Management Team 1 requested a Damage Inspection (DINS) Team for the Butte Incident. Early Friday, 9/12/15 lead DINS team members were already mobilizing to the incident. Ultimately, the DINS team was comprised of Deputy State Fire Marshall's from the Office of the State Fire Marshall, Field Observers (FOBS) and specially trained Fire Captains from the CAL FIRE Land Use Planning Program.

Data collection teams were formed and training on what data was to be collected was provided to team members. Additionally, there was time devoted to instruct the team members on the use of the "Collector Application", which is software used by mobile hand-held devices to collect and store data digitally.

By the next morning five groups were assembled, trained and were deployed in the field. The Butte fire was divided into geographic areas containing damaged and destroyed structures. The geographic areas were divided into 11 zones. Initial field reports from team members and windshield surveys were used to help subdivide these zones into manageable workloads, as well as guide the teams to the initial data points. Maps were constructed and provided to each team.

FINDINGS

Though originating in Amador County, almost all of the destroyed structures were located in Calaveras County. A total of 965 structures were destroyed or damaged in the fire; one of which was located in Amador County. Of the 2,666 parcels located in the burn area, 1,156 had an assessed improved value of over $10,000 (amount assumed to be the minimum for a home value in the area). Of those parcels, 477 had improvements that were damaged or destroyed. Some of the structures in the area, including homes, may have not been built following county building codes. Due to this lack of data, determining an exact value of the property destroyed by the fire was very difficult.

To better understand the value of the habitable structures destroyed versus what was saved, either through defensible space or by the actions of firefighters, the team obtained the most current Amador and Calaveras County parcel data. The team identified all parcels within the fire perimeter that had assessed values of greater than $10,000. It was determined that 41.2% of the parcels within the fire perimeter valued at $10,000 or more were destroyed.

The team was specifically tasked with inspecting damaged and destroyed structures, not other assets, such as trailers other than mobile homes, vehicles, heavy equipment, boats, tools, furnishings, jewelry and agricultural related goods.

PRE FIRE ACTIVITIES

DEFENSIBLE SPACE INSPECTIONS

Both the Amador-El Dorado and Tuolumne-Calaveras CAL FIRE Units have active defensible space inspection programs. Within the fire area numerous defensible space inspections were completed.

FUELS REDUCTION

Success Story 1: Mokelumne Hill Fire Defense Project - Fuel Break

The historic town of Mokelumne Hill sits atop the south rim of the Mokelumne River canyon, just east of Highway 49. Fuels in the canyon are a mix of chaparral, dense oak and scattered pine. In 2012, a Western States WUI grant funded the Mokelumne Hill Fire Defense project, creating a shaded fuel break up to 300 feet in width between portions of the north end of town and the canyon. Project maintenance has occurred through 2015.

Field testimony indicated the fuel break was instrumental in providing a reduced fuel zone for firefighters to engage the fire during suppression efforts, effectively stopping the fire prior to reaching the north end of town. No homes were lost in Mokelumne Hill adjacent to the fuel break; approximately 25 homes are immediately adjacent to the fuel break. Had it not been established, the potential of the fire destroying one or more of these homes would have been significantly higher. As evidenced by recent fires, such as the 2014 Boles Fire, home to home ignitability can play a major role in the overall number of structures lost in higher density residential areas. Arguably, much of Mokelumne Hill could have been destroyed in absence of this fuel reduction effort.

Success Story 2: Pine Acres Fuel Reduction Area - Fuel Break

Pine Acres is a neighborhood near the community of Pine Grove, located in western Amador County. It lies at about 2,500 feet elevation, situated on the ridge north of the Mokelumne River. Vegetation type varies from grass & oak woodlands, brush, and heavy stands of black oak & pine predominately related to slope-aspect.

The Pine Acres Vegetation Management Project (PAVMP) has been maintained for approximately 20 years to protect the community of Pine Acres from a fire advancing out of the Mokelumne River drainage. Treatments included thinning stands of trees & brush (reducing fuel loading) and identifying control lines & access points (pre-attack planning). Regular maintenance of the PAVMP helped maintain the effectiveness of the treatment area.

During the initial stages of the Butte Fire, fire line supervisors recognized the opportunity to use the PAVMP as a critical control line. Crews lit backfires to halt the forward spread of the fire, keeping it from the community of Pine Acres. Additionally, using a pre-identified ridgeline to construct fire line they were able to control the fire from spreading northeast up the Mokelumne River drainage. Had this fire line not held to the east, the next scouted likely contingency line would have added an estimated 50,000 acres to the final fire size. Despite the fire burning in close proximity to hundreds of structures, the PAVMP held the fire and no structures were destroyed in the Pine Acres neighborhood.

CONCLUSION

Data collection and analysis was complex due to the massive size of the incident and number of structures damaged or destroyed. To date, this incident ranks in the top ten most damaging in state history in terms of structures lost. Another issue that added to the complexity was the large number of unconventional, non-permitted structures that were not always easy to identify as habitable structures. Despite these difficulties, the team was able to mobilize support and complete damaged and destroyed structure data count, analysis and summary in a relatively short period of time.

The team successfully utilized an application that collects data using hand held devices, which is a relatively new technology for CAL FIRE. Though there are glitches that need to be resolved, the team proved that this application can be utilized in areas with limited data service, with the caveat that time is invested up front to train the FOBS to use this method of data collection. If the application is used in lieu of tradition paper form data collection, then it saves time and confusion in collecting data in the field, and reconciling the data in the back office. While this report does work to identify some of the factors leading to structural loss, there may still be opportunities for further analysis, as well as data gathering.

Several challenges associated with the Collector Application were identified during this deployment. Because much of the fire area did not have adequate cellular service, at times data had to be collected off line and stored on the device. This required a map to be downloaded to the device prior to data collection. Map downloads were problematic because of inadequate band width and, in at least one instance, due to an issue associated with the Collector Application's server. This loss of connectivity significantly slowed the data input process, and reduced each team's effectiveness and speed of operation.

To overcome most of these challenges, either increased bandwidth would be required, or if not available, downloads should be metered with no more than two or three devices downloading at once. Installing mobile cellular connectivity for the incident area could also help improve data delivery. Another potential solution would be the acquisition of approximately 8 to 12 tablets that work well with the Collector Application. Preferably, this would require field testing of several brands prior to purchase.

The DINS Team would like to thank the CAL FIRE Amador-EI Dorado and Tuolumne-Calaveras Units and Incident Management Team 1. We would also like to thank Don Watt, Terrence Lebo and Mike Olivarria for their additions to the report. Finally we would like to thank Calaveras County Building Official Jeff White for providing excellent local knowledge and helping to foster a great example of local and state governments working together.
